

Activities:

Show children a yo-yo. Let them take turns making it go up and down. Sometimes we are like yo-yos, switching moods. How was Pharaoh like a yo-yo?

Have one child stand with a flyswatter while the others throw paper balls at them. Have them try to swat all the paper balls away. Did their arms get tired from doing this for a minute? Imagine swatting at flies like this all day.

Sit on the floor in a circle. Have one child go in the middle and say, "Let My people go!" to another. The child addressed must try to keep a straight face, frowning and folding their arms. The child in the middle can make faces to try and make the other laugh. If they laugh, they trade places, if not, the person in the middle can try with another child.

Pass around a sponge and a stone. How are they different? Put the stone and sponge in a pan and show children a glass of water. This glass of water is like God's word. God wants to pour His word into people's hearts. Pour water onto the rock. It spills right off because the rock doesn't want to let it in. Pour water onto the sponge very slowly. The sponge absorbs the water and becomes full of it. What kind of heart do you want to have? One that won't let God's word in, or one that is filled with love for God?

Coloring Page:

Give children cotton balls to glue inside the heart. Talk about the importance of having a soft heart.

Modeling dough:

Show children dry modeling dough. Pharaoh's heart was hard. If you have a hard heart, do you realize you're a sinner? Can you ask forgiveness? Can you change your bad behavior? (no) What kind of hearts does God want us to have? (soft hearts that He can mold to be more like Him). Give each child some dough to mold into the shape of a heart. Discuss ways to have a soft heart (be willing to admit when you're wrong, think about how your actions affect others and what God thinks of them, don't act like you're better than everyone, show compassion when others are struggling...and most importantly, ask Jesus into our hearts and to forgive our sins).

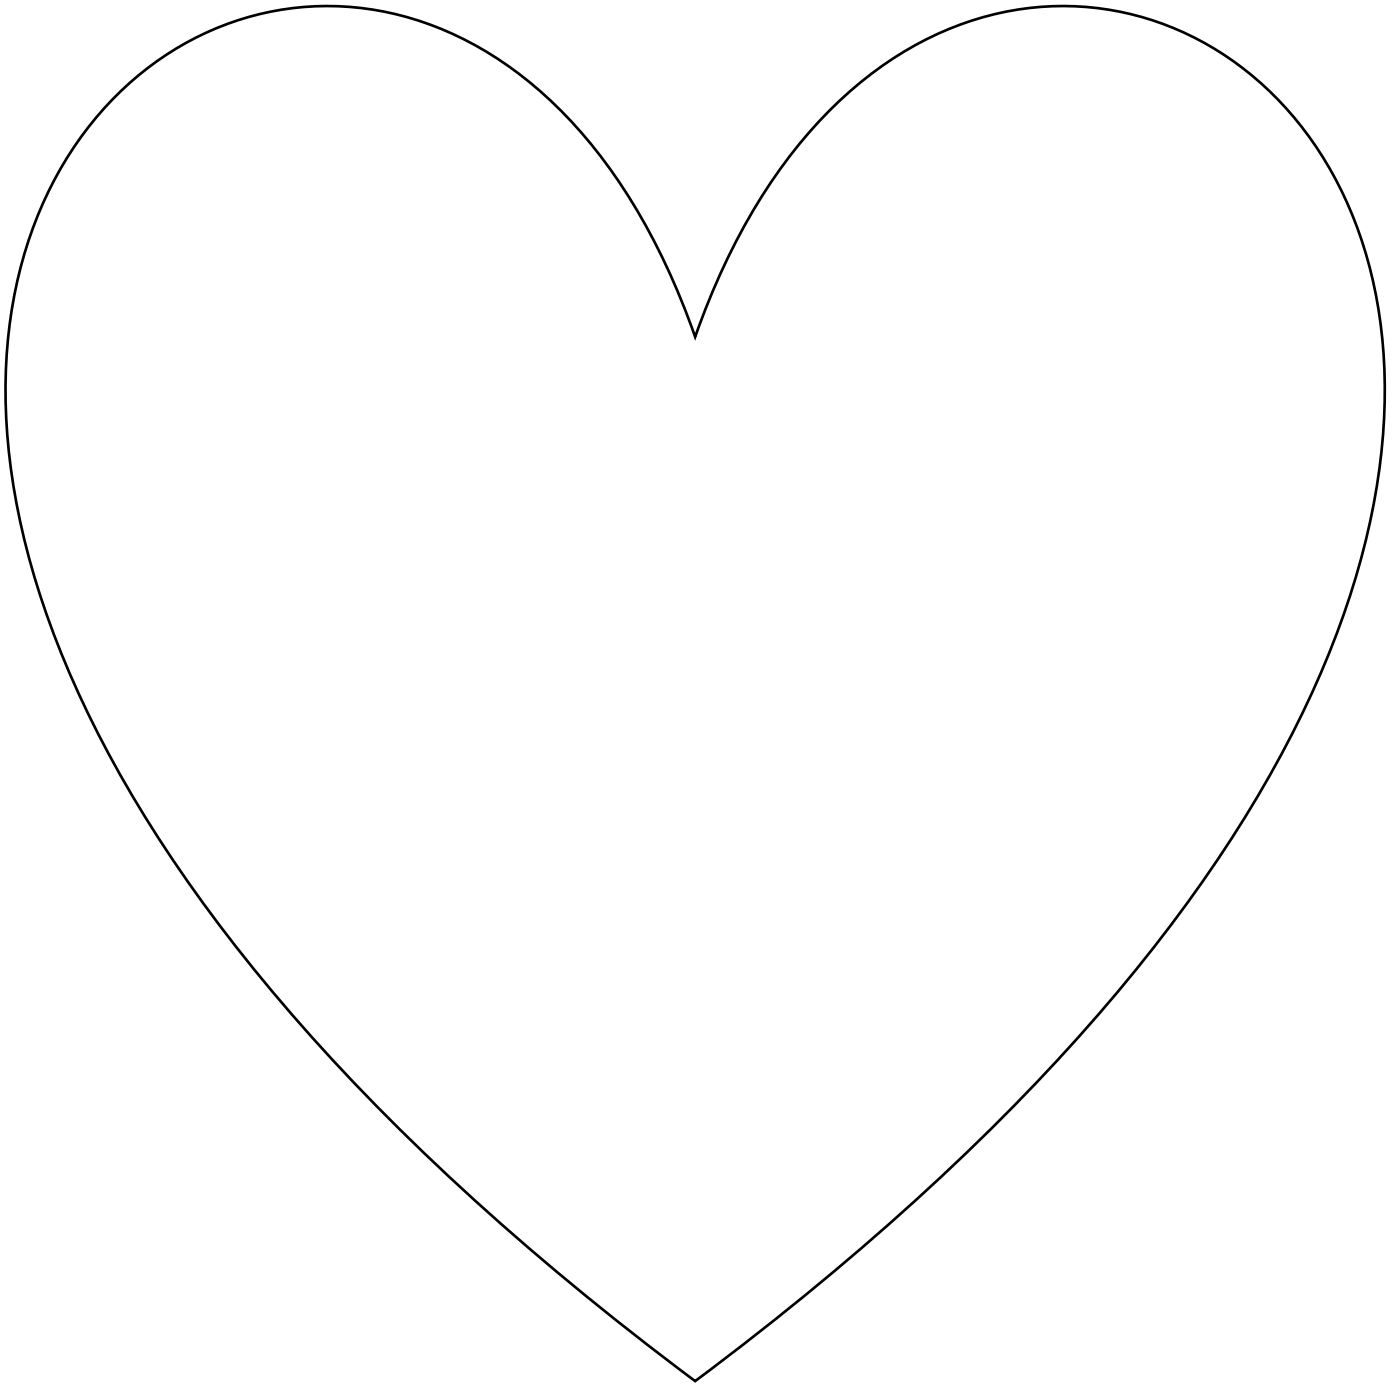

Game:

Play a plague version of Red Light, Green Light where children line up on one wall and pretend to be the frogs jumping out of the Nile River. You can repeat this with flies or gnats flying, sneezing cows, hailstones and grasshoppers.
