The Two Flies

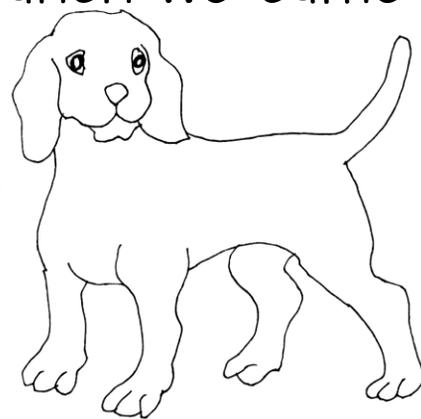

There are  two flies buzzing in the  sky. One fly flies up and one fly flies left. One fly lies on the grass and one fly lies on the road.

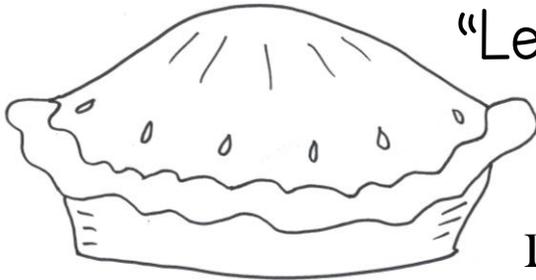

One fly cries when he gets hit by the wind and one fly did not cry. One fly tries to fly home and one fly does not try.

One fly lands on a plant that has died  and one fly lands on a live plant. One fly spies a dog and says, "Let's catch a ride back to the tree branch we came from."

The dog brings them inside where they spy a nice pie on the ledge.

 "Let's eat!" cried the flies.

The Ten Spies

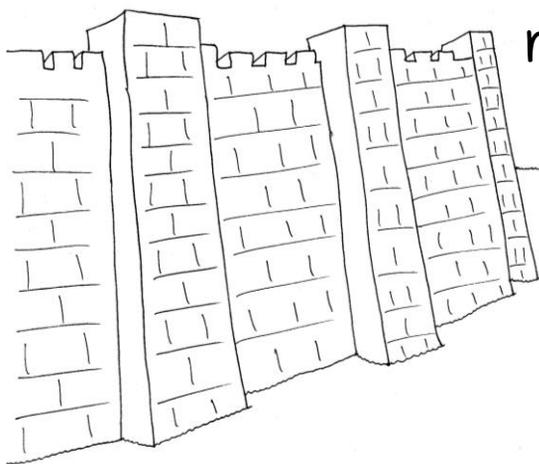

see

a big gate to Ten spies went to try and get inside. Nine spies cried the gate was too big, so three spies go home. Six spies said a big man stands to keep them from going inside, so one more spy will go home. Five spies said at ten the big man lies at the gate and sleeps. They tried to peek at him, but he did wake, so three spies went home. Two spies tied the man's feet and hands, but he broke the chains and yelled, so one more spy went home. The last spy gave the man some pie and he ate it up, so just one spy strides into the city. The man does not stop him!
