

Voltage:

When two ends of a circuit have opposite charges, this creates a difference in potential energy.

Electrons built up at the negatively charged end have the potential to transfer to the positively charged end.