Silly Sayings

Mom baked pies on the pier. Dad pierced the pies and gave a piece to me.

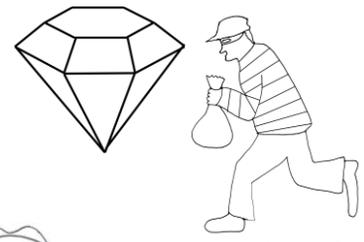

My nice niece sees a nest for mice.

The chief filed a page in his files. The page told the tale of a fierce game on the grass field.

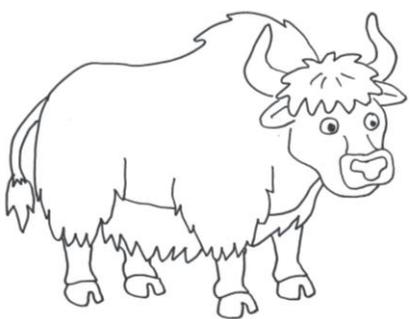

When the thief stole the gems, it was a theft that led to much grief.

When the cop flashed his shield, the thief shied back and hid in a shed like a snail in its shell.

“Yield!” yelled the hiking man, but the yak did not reply yes.

The Bank Got Robbed

“Help! Help!” cried the man in the bank. “A thief stole the bag of coins and a piece of gold chain that belongs to my niece!”

The thief ran, but soon a cop chased him. She chased him on a field. She chased him to the end of a pier. She told him to yield. For a brief time he tried to get past her, but she was so strong. She did flash a shield and told him a list of rules.

“I believe you need to go see the chief,” she exclaimed.
